Waring Court Pediatric And Adult Medical Group (WCPAMG) provides qualified sports physicals for kids and teens. Following the session, your WCPAMG provider will fill in the required medical forms for the athlete.

Also called pre-participation physical examinations (PPE*), sports physicals are usually a part of registering youths for participation in a sport. Organizers generally require an evaluation for children to participate, with regulations varying according to the rules of the respective state, school, or a sport's governing body. A PPE helps to assure that the athlete is healthy and physically ready for their chosen activity such as baseball, football, martial arts, soccer, or track.

Before registering, check with the organizers about their eligibility requirements. The purpose is to help minimize the risk of injury while your child plays.

PPE does not replace the recommended annual physical with your pediatrician/doctor. Please note, PPE is not a covered health plan benefit.*
